Personal Bio

Reed was born and raised in New Orleans, Louisiana. Graduating Summa Cum Laude, he received his Bachelor of Arts from Brown University in 1991. In 1998 Reed graduated with a Juris Doctorate from Martin Luther King Jr. School of Law at University of California at Davis. While attending school, he was the two-time King Hall Public Interest Foundation Grant recipient and Editor in Chief of the UC Davis Journal of Law and Public Policy. While parenting two extremely active and dynamic teenagers, Reed enjoys mountain biking, rock climbing, surfing, off the grid travel and sustainable living and reading. Community service opportunities include coaching the Rhode Island Special Olympics soccer team to two national championships and being a court-appointed Special Advocate and Guardian ad Litem.

Business Bio

Since 2003, Reed has practiced law in the greater Salt Lake Valley. He also is licensed and has practiced in California since 1999. Reed is a 'Jack of all trades' in civil practice with emphasis on estate planning for blended families and the LGBTQ community as well as small business and divorce litigation. Reed can be trusted to be honest and straightforward. His goal is to provide value and certainty so that his clients can go on worry-free with living their lives.
