ASSOCIATE COUNSEL

Mike and Klea Harris have been married for nineteen years in May. They have a busy household of six children, ages nineteen to six including two children they adopted from Haiti nearly 14 years ago. Mike supported Klea when she returned to obtain her law degree with five young children.

While attending BYU Law School, Klea received the outstanding community service award; legal writing award; served as Senior Editor for the Education Law Journal; started the campus club, Mothers in the Law; worked on the Joseph Smith Papers Project with Jack Welch; gave birth to their sixth child; and graduated early. She has focused most of her professional efforts on developing prevention and social emotional learning curriculum for the Utah State Office of Education (USOE) and The School of Life Project.org. Klea sat on the USOE Safe and Drug Free Schools Prevention Counsel from 2007-2014.

As her season in life has transitioned to caring for their aging parents and elderly grandparents, Klea has turned her attention to elder law and estate planning. Klea minored in gerontology as an undergraduate and has always enjoyed assisting aging populations and those who love them. She is known as a passionate and knowledgeable educator and sees this as her primary role with her clients and their families. Klea enjoys serving the residents of Utah and Millard counties where her grandparents reside.

Klea is in her seventh year volunteering for the Meals on Wheels program, delivering to homebound seniors in north Orem. Klea also loves hiking the National Parks with her family and writing for sheteachesfearlessly.com. Mike and Klea enjoy facilitating for Passport to Love-a series of skill building date nights for married couples sponsored by the Utah Marriage Commission. Klea was born in Rocky Mountain House, Alberta, Canada and spent her adolescent years in Placerville, California before settling in Utah County where she has resided for the past 20 years.
